

MSU Extension Advance Michigan Initiative

E-mail from Scott Brown, Michigan Lake & Stream Associations Executive Director

May 25, 2010

Dear Michigan Inland Lake Stakeholders,

Our Michigan State University Extension partners have launched a web site entitled Advance Michigan to query folks for their opinions and ideas on the issues that are of primary importance to citizens living in Michigan. The leadership of MSU Extension is very interested in your ideas about creating Michigan's future. You and your ideas will help decide what the future of our great state will look like!

It is no surprise that a Michigan lakes sub-page has been created within this site - our inland lake gems will play an extremely important role in the future of our great state. Clicking on the link below will take you to this particular web page. We would greatly appreciate your time and effort in creating a "Sign-In" e-mail and password once you arrive at the site which will then allow you to contribute your ideas and opinions regarding the value and future of Michigan's 11,000 inland lakes. This is a great way for folks to express their ideas and positively influence the public policy debate in Michigan.

MSU Extension has played an important role in providing Michigan's inland lake communities with the vital science-based information they have needed to make sound decisions regarding the management of their particular lakes. Michigan Lake and Stream Associations recognizes the important role of MSU Extension in preserving our inland lake resources for the future and values our longstanding collaborative partnership.
